

Belt Up

Ideally suited for Year 9

Performance length: 60 minutes

Audience number: approximately 150

Venue: ideally on the flat in a school hall with the audience on three sides (see below)

Box Clever presents a dramatic new performance focusing on the importance of seat-belt wearing and the consequences of failing to do so, even just for a moment. The performance is highly engaging and interactive and resonates emotionally with its young audience. As the drama unfolds, the actors and facilitator present the students with familiar and recognisable situations and actions and the stark consequences of decisions that they may make when a passenger in a car.

The play centres on a specific case study concerning two young people, not much older than those in the audience, and charts their journey from a party to a seemingly inevitable fate. Interacting directly with audience members, the company re-enact the scene to investigate how things could be different, if only seat belts had been worn.

The Package

- Full liaison with schools to coordinate bookings.
- Maximum audience size 150.
- Sold in week-long blocks of 10 performances.
- During the performance, the young people are involved in actively working out their choices in the absence of adults telling them what to do.
- Personalised post-tour evaluation report based on views of teachers and young people.
-

To book this, or any other Box Clever production or workshop contact tourbooker@boxclevertheatre.com or 0207 793 0040.